

HINK PINK

by Discovery Bay Games

“A fast blast of riddles and rhymes.”

Another noncompetitive activity.

Each card contains a riddle that is answered by a rhyme of one, two, or three syllable words.

One person at a time, beginning with the professor, will state whether the riddle is a “hink pink” (single syllable rhyme), “hinky pinky” (two-syllable rhyme), or a “hinkity pinkity” (three-syllable rhyme). This is indicated at the top of each card. Then, the same player will read the riddle aloud (but NOT the rhyme at the bottom of the card).

Other players then must figure out the answering rhyme. When the rhyme has been correctly identified, play continues to the next person who reads his or her card.

Example: Hink Pink. A sports match where players compete in order to find fault = Blame Game

Through this game, students have a chance to work on several aspects of language and word choice in public speaking:

- Rhetorical devices, such as rhymes, that make oral communication more engaging and memorable
- Oral style through simplified word choice
- Consideration of alternative modes of expression
